

Dan's Papers

DansPapers.com

Dear Reader,

Starting with this very issue you hold in your hands, or are reading in digital format, Dan's Hamptons Media and The Independent have joined together to form one company—Dan's Independent Media.

Our mission is simple: to bring you the best of everything East End.

Both The Independent and Dan's Papers have long been organic, authentic voices of and for the Hamptons and the North Fork. The history of each publication is rooted in a love for our local communities and a passion for informing and entertaining.

While our merger discussion began earlier this year, before COVID-19, we feel the timing could not be better. We knew that by combining our strengths and reach, we could offer something no other media company can deliver on the East End—the best, most trusted local news reporting and the most engaging, entertaining stories around the arts, food and wine, real estate and more.

Especially during the current climate, we understand the importance of community journalism, and we will continue to bring you the unparalleled, unbiased, in-depth reporting that has become the hallmark of The Independent through the award-winning work of its reporters and editors. That singular news coverage is uniting with the iconic multiplatform editorial, events and digital businesses of Dan's Papers, which continues as the go-to resource for what to do, where to go, where to stay and where to play on the East End while also offering humorous, sometimes satirical, takes on the local environs we all adore.

This new combined company's newspaper will be a single weekly publication, Dan's Papers, which will now include the best of The Independent's news and special content each and every issue. The websites you know and love—IndyEastEnd.com and DansPapers.com—will continue to be your go-to destinations, sharing content but having their own unique, powerful identities. IndyEastEnd.com will focus on community and breaking news, while DansPapers.com will continue to offer its lifestyle and entertainment coverage, plus its renowned Calendar of Events. BehindtheHedges.com remains the top site for East End real estate news, and DansBOTB.com the ultimate resource for local businesses and the annual Dan's Best of the Best awards.

We also look forward to seeing you again soon in person at our Hamptons and North Fork gatherings. Dan's Taste of Summer, our series of food and wine events (now in its tenth anniversary year), is waiting patiently for directives on social distancing, but we're already in planning for smaller, but just as tasty, events later in the summer/early fall. As many of you know, our Hamptons Home Show has gone virtual and will be launching next month. You'll also find us organizing community events—virtually and in person—highlighting policy issues with policy makers and involved citizens that The Independent was already committed to hosting.

In short, we look forward to growing together while supporting the best of the best in independent journalism and sharing stories that enlighten, engage and are being told nowhere else. Step inside. Let's begin this journey.

Together, with you, we are Everything East End.

GRAND OPENING!!!

MONTAUK PLUMBING & HEATING

Montauk Plumbing and Heating would like to proudly announce the grand opening of our Bridgehampton location, the first of two new additional locations (our Southampton location opening soon!). With the addition of these two new locations, we will be able to further improve on the already superior service that we offer to our customers. We would also like to introduce Ed Maryon, formally of Hardy Plumbing and Heating, as the newest member of our management team. Ed will be managing our plumbing service division with the same courtesy and professionalism that many of you have been accustomed to in the past. With over thirty years experience in the plumbing and heating industry on the East End of Long Island, he will certainly be a great asset to our company. Please join us in welcoming Ed and wishing him the best of luck.

CALL 631-377-3323 FOR TAKE OUT & DELIVERY DURING THE COVID-19 SHUTDOWN

Dear Union Friends and Family,

As most of you have heard by now, all restaurants in the tri-state area have been government-mandated to close our doors by 8 pm this evening for an indefinite period of time. We are anticipating this period to be anywhere north of the next 5 weeks. That mandate, however, does not apply to the service of food and beverage in a To Go, Delivery or Catering capacity. So, with that in mind, it is our intention to continue serving the best Burgers, Fries & Shakes on the east end for all of our devoted Union fans.

Our hours of operation will be from 12 noon until 9 pm every day of the week. Pick up and Catering orders are available by calling us directly at 631-377-3323 and for delivery via Uber Eats or Grub-hub. For office luncheons and larger family dinners - please reach out to us directly and we will be more than happy to customize menus and make deliveries to your location.

We are also aware that many of you had larger social gatherings planned in the coming months that have been forced to postpone or even worse cancel. Please allow us to help. We are not limited to the confines of our Union Burger Bar menu. Should you be looking to host small private events, we are happy to help and provide you with all of your food and beverage needs. That, by the way, could include alcohol as the state has afforded us some flexibility on this during this difficult time.

All of that being said, please know that all of you are in our hearts and prayers.
Stay positive, stay safe and please try to help someone less fortunate.

That is how we can all get through this, together.

Best wishes,
Ian Duke and the Entire Team at Union

OUT & ABOUT ON THE EAST END

WHAT TO DO. WHERE TO GO. WHERE TO PLAY.

Art Apart: East Hampton's Roadside Exhibition to Everyone

SATURDAY, JUNE 20, 10AM—4PM

East Hampton Town will experience an explosion of art this Saturday, when its streets are lined with works of every medium. The East Hampton Arts Council presents a self-guided, un-curated art tour that will showcase the work of any and all town residents who sign up to participate. Registered artists will be added to a free online map of the tour, which tourgoers can follow to completion or use to pick and choose which neighborhoods they'd like to peruse. The long list of participating artists includes local favorites including Scott Bluedorn, Nicole Parcher, Peter Spacek, Jane Martin, Michele D'ermo, Janet Jennings and Idoline Duke, who conceived the Art Apart concept. The rain date is Sunday, June 21.

See the artist map and learn more at artapart2020.wixsite.com/2020.

...AND NORTH, TOO

Since COVID-19 forced schools to cancel in-person graduations, Hamptons celebrities have been taking to social media to celebrate their kids' accomplishments.

Montauk's Julianne Moore, who typically keeps her kids out of the spotlight, shared a photo of daughter Liv Freundlich on Instagram. "My daughter Liv Freundlich graduates from high school today. We are so proud of everything she is and everything she has accomplished. She is smart and brave and kind, and I can't wait to see what she does next. We love u @livfreundlich - and u are stuck with us for a few more months, thank goodness. #classof2020," she wrote.

that we cannot celebrate him today in the way that he deserves. We love you so much Cal and we are SO PROUD #graduation2020."

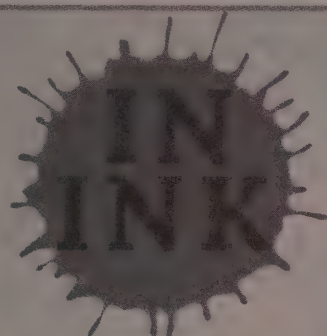

Earlier, in May, Moore shared a photo of son Caleb Freundlich with the message, "My son @cal_freundlich graduates from @davidsoncollege today. We could not be prouder of everything he has accomplished these last 4 years - graduating with honors, playing for @davidsonbasketball and getting into grad school. We are heartbroken

Water Mill's Kelly Ripa shared a photo of son Michael Consuelos, who graduated from NYU. "And just like that you graduated college. MJC, the joy and pride you have brought our family is indescribable. I love you with all my heart #NYU #2020." Ripa, husband, Mark

KELLY RIPA AND MARK CONSUELOA

Consuelos, echoed the sentiment: #Happy virtual graduation MJC. We are so proud of you. #quarentinegraduation2020 we know it's not what we all expected but we are so grateful to be all together on what I know must seem like the longest family trip ever..."

SOUTH O' THE HIGHWAY

...AND NORTH, TOO

Hamptons regular Tinsley Mortimer has announced her exit from The Real Housewives of New York City (RHONY). Mortimer took to Instagram to announce the news. "Thank you from the bottom of my heart to all my fans and friends who supported me and are happy for my fairy tale ending. Without #RHONY, I would never have met my prince charming, Scott. Being a Housewife was such a fun experience, and I thank @bravoandy and all the wonderful people at Shed Media and @bravotv," she wrote. The socialite and heiress has moved to Chicago with fiancé Scott Kluth, who she met through former RHONY co-star Carole Radziwill, a former East Hampton resident. Mortimer joined Real Housewives in 2017 and at 44 is one of the younger cast members. The Real Housewives of New York City is created by Amagansett's Andy Cohen.

Hocus Pocus has become a cult hit over the years. Disney's 1993 comedy, starring Amagansett's

SARAH JESSICA PARKER

Sarah Jessica Parker, Bette Midler and Kathy Najimi as witches who are resurrected one Halloween night and wreak havoc on Salem as a group of kids try to stop them, is beloved for its hilarious performances, campy moments and a showstopping take on Screamin' Joe Hawkins' "I Put a Spell on You." In 2019, Disney announced a sequel to the film, to be directed by Adam Shankman featuring the original trio. Parker recently told CinemaBlend: "I think that it is something Bette Midler, Kathy [Najimi] and I are all very hospitable to the idea. I think for a long time, people were talking about it as if people were moving forward with it in a real way but we were unaware of it. But I think now we've gotten to the point where we've agreed publicly to the right people 'Yes, that would be a very, very fun idea,' so we'll see what the future holds."

The Retreat's biggest event of the year, All Against Abuse, returned with some major changes last weekend to raise the necessary funds to provide free domestic abuse services to East End survivors, and top local artists and celebrities lent their support to promote the effort in its new virtual format. With COVID-19 still posing a threat to large gatherings, the organization protected against spreading the virus by hosting a 10-day online benefit auction that began on Friday, June 12, and an elegant virtual cocktail party and live auction via Zoom that took place Saturday, June 13. The event featured appearances and performances by a number of The Retreat's Hamptons celebrity supporters, including Mariska Hargitay, Ali Wentworth, Kelly Ripa, Joy Behar, Don Lemon, feminist author Leslie Morgan Steiner (The Naked Truth: A Memoir) and young actor Jaret Martino.

Introducing Dan's Independent News Service

Local news matters, now more than ever.

In a time that poses as many questions as it reveals answers, journalists not only tell the stories about what is happening around us, they help give these stories context. They help us remain engaged and aware, and in turn able to participate in our communities in an informed and meaningful way.

As Dan's Independent Media, we are dedicated to delivering unbiased, in-depth reporting on the local matters that matter most to you. In today's world, one that moves quickly and where the one constant is change, there is only one way to do that:

Digital first.

And the first place to turn is IndyEastEnd.com.

IndyEastEnd.com is our home for news. We want you to make it yours, too. Every day at IndyEastEnd.com you will read breaking reports and up-to-the-minute coverage. You'll find insightful features and ongoing series, current facts but also historical perspective. With every story, it's not about telling you what just happened, but what is happening, right now, through the eyes and experience of award-winning writers who are immersed in East End life. We report on the matters that connect us, uncovering the local topics of importance and the unique ways in which issues that affect our state and our nation hit close to home.

Every week, Dan's Papers will showcase the top stories from IndyEastEnd.com and the news trends you need to follow. We will also be sharing thoughts and comments you share with us and one another on social media, helping to drive the conversation around what you find worthy of public discourse.

New York Passes Landmark Police Reform

BY TAYLOR K. VECSEY

In the three weeks since George Floyd died in police custody in Minneapolis, sparking nationwide protests, Governor Andrew Cuomo floated the “Say Their Name” reform agenda to end what he called an ongoing pattern of police brutality against minority communities. Over the past week, he signed into law new pieces of police reform legislation, the first of its kind in the nation.

A set of new laws brings transparency with regards to disciplinary records of police officers accused or being investigated—a change to the decades old Section 50-a of the New York State Civil Rights Law that has allowed the police to keep personnel records private. Chokeholds by police are now banned, false 911 calls based on race will be considered a hate crime, and the attorney general has been made the independent prosecutor for all matters relating to the deaths of unarmed civilians by law enforcement officers, codifying a five-year old executive order.

In addition, Cuomo issued an executive order, the New York State Police Reform and Reinvention Collaborative, that mandates that local police departments—of which there are about 500, including nine on the East End—to develop a plan that reinvents and modernizes police strategies and programs in their community. The departments will have to formulate and enact a plan addressing issues of the use of force by police, crowd management, community policing, deescalation training and more, by April 1, 2021, or forgo state funding.

Also, on Monday, Cuomo put his signature on other news laws, including mandating that any law enforcement officer—on duty or off duty—must now report when he or she discharges their weapon, whether someone was hurt or not, within six hours of the incident. Courts must now compile and publish racial and other demographic data of all low-level offenses, and police officers must provide medical and mental health attention to individuals in custody.

Reacting to the historic reforms regarding policing in the State of New York, local police chiefs feel confident they are already meeting many of the required changes. 🐾

Overnight Camps Won't Happen This Summer

BY TAYLOR K. VECSEY

While day camps gear up to start at the end of the month, New York State health officials have put the kibosh on sleepaway camps opening this summer due to the novel coronavirus.

New York State Health Commissioner Dr. Howard Zucker said June 12 that the close living quarters at overnight camps poses too many risks when it comes to the spread of the virus. Although Dr. Zucker did not specifically mention it in his statement, state officials have been concerned about a COVID-related multi-system inflammatory disease seen in children that has killed at least three.

“Throughout this entire public health response, there isn’t a single decision we have not made based on data and science; rather than emotion. Using the best currently available science and data, I have reached a decision to prohibit overnight children’s camps from operating this season in New York State,” he said in a statement.

Day camps are still allowed to open June 29. However, in-classroom summer school was also canceled throughout the state last month.

But, sleepaway camps present far greater risks, the health commissioner said. “In such a setting, even a single positive case in a camper or staff member could create an untenable quarantine situation and overwhelm camp health personnel that may not be able to handle a serious infectious outbreak of this nature.”

Camp Quinipet on Shelter Island, which has an overnight camp as well as a day camp, made the decision back on May 15 to cancel all programs this summer. “We have analyzed, reflected, and run in-depth scenarios of what our programming could look like this summer while keeping our campers and staff healthy and safe. In each instance the challenges pivot and become more complex, and the risks seem insurmountable,” Brooke Bradley, the executive director, said in the announcement.

While the infection rates throughout New York State have been declining, Dr. Zucker said the state must still be cautious and avoid any situation that could undo the state’s progress.

“I have fond memories of summer sleepaway camp as a kid and I understand the role they play in childhood development and the disappointment this decision may bring to families across the state. But amid the worst public health crisis in a century, my number one priority is the health and safety of all New Yorkers.” 🐾

Protests for George Floyd Continue in Riverhead and Hampton Bays

BY JESSICA MACKIN-CIPRO

Hundreds of protesters gathered at the Hampton Bays train station to support Black Lives Matter on Sunday afternoon. This protest followed two weeks of demonstrations held across the East End to stand against police brutality and systemic racism in the wake of George Floyd's death, which has sparked nationwide protests.

The event, which was organized by Willie Jenkins, Lisa Votino and Trevon Jenkins, was a peaceful march and demonstration. "We're here to protest peacefully, but loudly," said Willie. "We are here for one mission and that's equality and justice."

"This generation will do it differently," said DeQuan Wilson. "We don't have to loot, we don't have to riot, we don't have to start the second Civil War. That is not the mission. We will find a way for you to understand what we mean by peace, and if it means stopping traffic for a half hour on a daily basis, that is what we'll do."

On Saturday people stood, as mothers organized two peaceful protests, in Riverhead. At the all-day protest on Route 58, people came and went, on the west side of the busy traffic circle, near Peconic Bay Medical Center.

"I know I'm just one person, one mom, one citizen, but I'm going to do everything I can to be heard as loud as I can,"

BLACK LIVES MATTER PROTEST IN HAMPTON BAYS

said Margarita Jimenez Ferebee, one of the organizers.

Frederick Miles Jr., who has taken part in other protests, led in the moment of solidarity. "White silence is violence. You don't feel his pain? Something wrong with America. Something wrong! He's a human being. Each and everyone of us breathe the same air!"

A second smaller rally of about 25 also occurred Saturday afternoon by the Peconic Riverfront. Cynthia Brunskill, the mother of nine, organized the protest.

"It was in the hopes to bring all the mothers together — mothers in solidarity," she explained. She had hoped to get information out and allow mothers to speak about their concerns. She also hopes to reach younger people and impart the importance of voting. 🐾

East Hampton Moves to Outdoor Dining

BY T.E. McMORROW

The Town of East Hampton is moving aggressively to enable restaurants to expand seating areas onto the public right of way. This action is being carried out on at least two tracks.

One track is a plan to close Main Street in downtown Montauk to vehicular traffic from South Embassy Street to South Edison Street, one day each week as part of the pilot program. Eastbound traffic would be diverted one block east from South Embassy to South Elmwood Avenue, which would be one way. Westbound traffic would be diverted at South Edison to South Euclid Avenue.

That proposal is still in the discussion stage, though Town Supervisor Peter Van Scoyoc has indicated that the town is going to move rapidly to allow its restaurants to function outdoors.

Another track the town is taking is an application it has made to the New York State Department of Transportation to allow restaurants in Amagansett and Montauk to use public right of way for customers. An approval from the DOT is required before the town can act on the proposal.

"We received the guidance and the application was finalized on Thursday of last week," Van Scoyoc said at the Town Board's meeting June 16. "That application was finalized and sent off yesterday," he said. "We think that it is important to continue to offer outdoor dining throughout the town as expeditiously as possible. As of Wednesday, June 10, outdoor dining was allowed to begin within private properties." 🐾

SHELTER ISLAND PROTEST ORGANIZER

Take a Deep Look at Yourself

BY TAYLOR K. VECSEY

The nationwide protests against racial injustice and police brutality reached the small, mostly white community of Shelter Island, one of the smallest towns on the East End. Some took the ferries from either of the two forks to be there, but many of the approximately 700 people in attendance were full-time or summer residents who wanted to stand with those calling for a change.

Three high school seniors, Henry Binder, Emma Gallagher, and Abby Kotula, organized the protest in line with the Black Lives Matter movement. "I would also like to acknowledge the lack of diversity. This is no coincidence," Gallagher said to the crowd that gathered by the Shelter Island School.

"Here on Shelter Island we are lucky enough to have a good police department. But this is not about us. This is about a societal shift to equality," she said. "If you are here only to blame police officers, I ask you to take a deep look into your life. How many things do you not even realize are offensive? How many privileges do you not even know you have? Do your research. Ask the black people in your life how you can do better. Blaming one group of people is not the answer."

Gallagher said the protest was a call for change to the national system, beyond just law enforcement. "And this is a system we have all contributed to at one point or another. If we want change we all have to accept that responsibility. Each and every one of us is the problem. We must call each other out. We must listen when others call us out. We must call ourselves out.”

The trio of organizers led a short march from the school, down North Ferry Road, the main drag on the island, shut down to traffic by police. In front of the Shelter Island police station, they stopped to observe the amount of time George Floyd was held on the ground with a Minneapolis police officer’s knee on his neck—eight minutes and 46 seconds. Some were on their stomachs with their hands behind their back. Others took a knee. Police stood innocuously nearby.

About halfway through, Binder asked the crowd to chant, “I can’t breathe,” for the rest of the time.

When the time had ended, Willie Jenkins, a local activist who has organized and attended many of the protests on the East End in recent weeks, addressed the crowd. Though the 37-year-old grew up in Bridgehampton only a few miles from the South Ferry, he said he only knew one person of color from Shelter Island his whole life. “This is filling my heart right now,” he said of the large group.

While people may be used to seeing acts of injustice happening elsewhere thanks to television news coverage or social media, Jenkins told them discrimination happens a lot closer to home than they realize. He grew up in what was then a predominantly black neighborhood. “But please believe, we are surrounded by white people, excuse my terminology. And the police department was mostly white,” he said.

“I didn’t know it was not normal not to get pulled out of your car growing up. I thought it was part of procedure. I thought getting searched was just what happened. Would you guys believe me if I told you that right in Bridgehampton a police officer pulled into my yard? I was just standing in my yard. He pulled into my yard, he pulled a gun on me, told me to empty my pockets. I asked him why? His reasoning was I was in a drug area...I said, ‘Officer, I live here.’ He said, ‘It doesn’t matter.’”

During some of the protests over the past two weeks, Jenkins said he lost his voice from chanting. People have been calling out injustices for centuries, he said. “We have been screaming and screaming and things are not right. I see a difference today. I see I’m not screaming by myself. You guys are lending me your voices.”

The crowd began to shout, “Black lives matter. Black lives matter.”

“But just remember while you guys can go home, you might be able to forget about this. Tomorrow, I’m still going to be black. The few African Americans that you do have on Shelter Island are still going to be black. I want you to talk to them. Ask them what they have been through,” Jenkins said. “You’ll be surprised. Because when you’ve not been heard for so long you have a tendency just to shut up and just deal with it. You can see the country is sick of dealing with it.”

Looking around at the mainly white crowd, Jenkins said: “You guys don’t even know how much this makes a difference. Never in a million years would I have thought you guys would do this.”

One man yelled out: “We have your back.”

“If I didn’t consider myself such a tough guy, I’d cry right now.”

After a short march back to the school, protestors again gathered to hear speakers. Aterahme Lawrence, a 2014 Shelter Island High School graduate known as Meme, spoke frankly about “racist, discriminatory behavior” she and her family experienced.

“There was a point in my life where I felt like my peers, the police, and the faculty in the school had left me down,” she said.

“It wasn’t the comments about blacks, fried chicken, or watermelon or Kool-Aid. It wasn’t them rapping the N-word or calling me one straight to my face. It wasn’t even the times that I was choked or spit on. It was just more general statements about black people being poor and how most of them were on welfare,” she said. “It was general statements that black people were truly bad people when I was one standing right before them.”

While she tried to speak up in the past, she was shut down and told she was the aggressor, causing the problem. “I’m not saying that my time here I was completely innocent, but I’m also saying that a lot of the issues that I did face stem to one true issue, that I was the only black person in my class. That my family were some of the only black people.”

She did not want apologies or for people to feel bad for her. Instead, she asked the crowd to speak to their children and to educate themselves. 🍌

HAMPTONS THROWN "UNDER THE BUS:" Do We Need a Detective for Phase 2 Reopening Rules?

BY T.E. McMORROW & TAYLOR K. VECSEY

East End officials are challenging New York State Governor Andrew Cuomo's assertion that there are rampant violations in "the Hamptons" of the reopening rules for businesses coming out of the COVID-19 shutdown. The governor threatened, potentially, to shut East End businesses down.

Local officials are asking where in the Hamptons, exactly, is the governor seeing all these violations? According to Southampton Town Supervisor Jay Schneiderman, the governor simply "threw the Hamptons under the bus."

"Manhattan and the Hamptons are the leading in the state with violations," Governor Cuomo said during his daily briefing Sunday, June 14, noting that there had been 25,000 complaints statewide. Some photos and video of social distancing being ignored or masks not being worn were even sent to him personally, he said.

While New York is seeing the lowest number of hospitalizations and deaths since the COVID-19 pandemic began and the state is leading the nation's reduction in the transmission of the virus, the governor expressed concern about the amount of reports filed about violations of the reopening rules.

Bars and restaurants run the risk of losing their liquor licenses if they violate the governor's executive orders. Additionally, patrons can be fined for open container and social distancing violations.

Local governments need to crack down on businesses and people not following the rules for the phases they are in, he said. New York City began Phase 1 on June 8, and Long Island began Phase 2 on June 10, which allows for outdoor dining at 50% capacity.

"These are not hard-to-spot violations. People send video of these violations—you can look it up on social media. You don't need a detective squad to go out and find them."

Judging from the response of local officials, Governor Cuomo might want to send out that detective squad, because local officials aren't seeing the violations the governor said are happening.

On Monday, East Hampton Town Police Chief Michael Sarlo said that this past weekend, "We had two complaints." Chief Sarlo repeated that number for emphasis. "Two."

East Hampton Town Supervisor Peter Van Scoyoc said Tuesday that the two complaints received by the town over the weekend both proved to be unfounded. One complaint was over a gathering of a yoga group, the other, people gathering in small groups on Gansett Green to eat take-out food. Police determined that proper distancing between strangers was being maintained in both.

Code enforcement has been fanning out across the Town of East Hampton, visiting restaurants and businesses that are returning to life. "A majority of people are in compliance. Businesses are working hard to ensure that guidelines are followed. If Albany is receiving complaints, we welcome those being forwarded for us to follow up on. This doesn't appear to have anything to do with us," Chief Sarlo said about the town he oversees.

Schneiderman agrees. "We are not seeing it either," he said about the alleged violations. "I'm not sure what the governor is talking about. Did he mean to imply that we are all not following the rules?" the supervisor asked. "They have been setting the rules, and we have been enforcing them. We have been working around the clock for three months. If he has information, he needs to share it with us."

"The Hamptons" does not just refer to the towns of East Hampton and Southampton, Schneiderman pointed out, but also several independent villages. Where on the map, he asked, are these violations occurring? Schneiderman, along with Van Scoyoc, had a long call with the governor's office Monday afternoon, seeking clarification on what these violations were that the governor referenced.

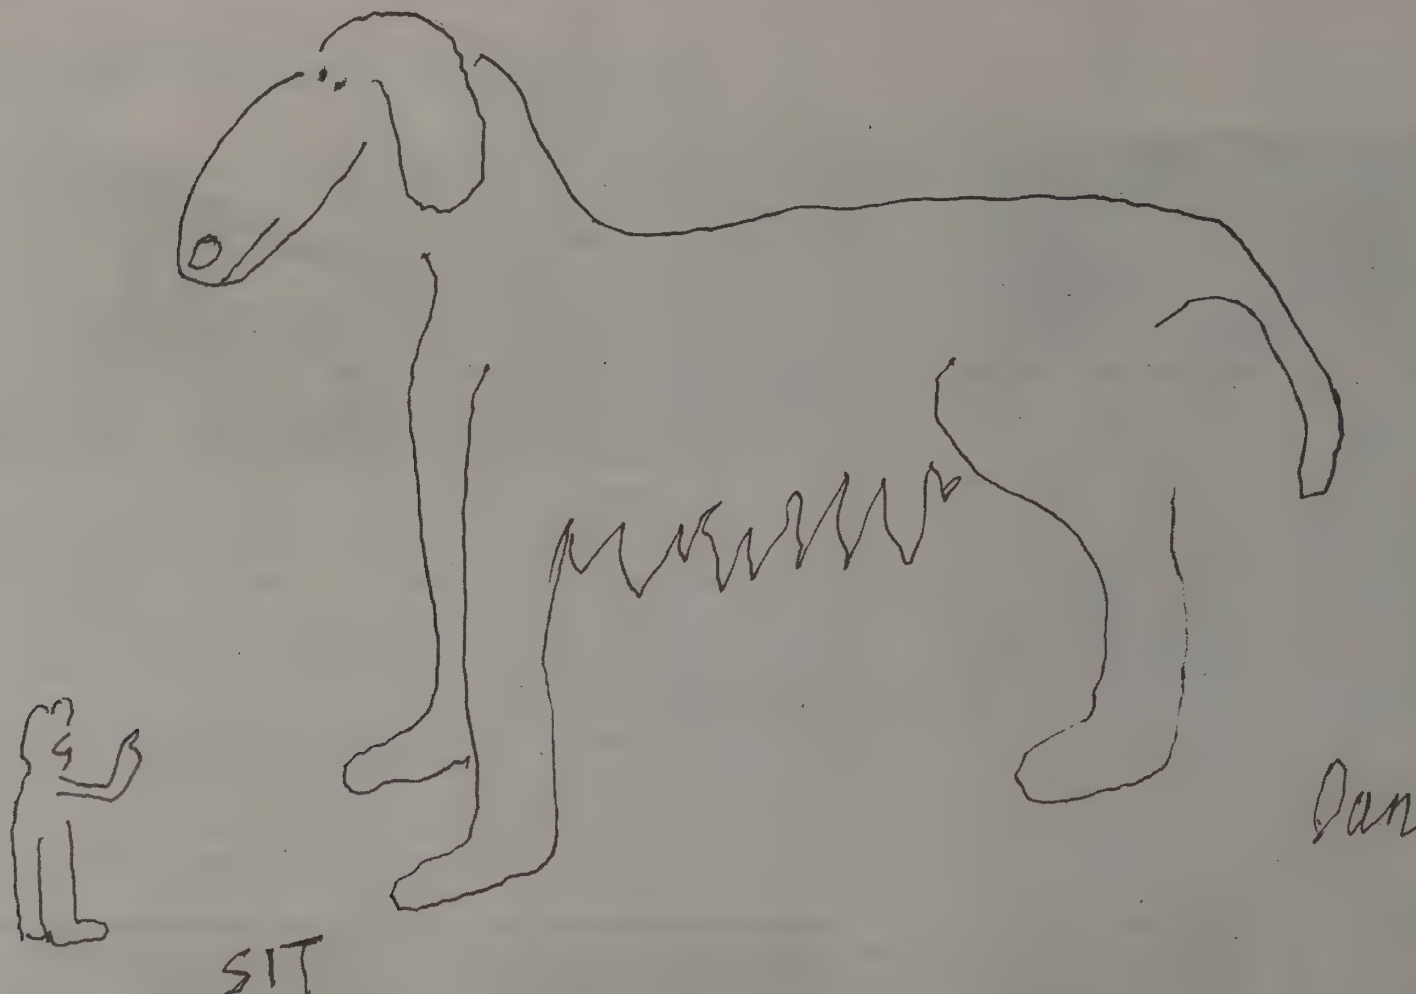

Schneiderman said he came away from the conversation with the governor's office (Cuomo was not on the call) as confused as he was going into it. "I don't know how to treat the governor's comments," he said after hanging up with Albany.

"Can you please share with us any complaints you have? If there is a problem, nobody here is aware of it," Schneiderman said.

Suffolk County Executive Steve Bellone said Monday that he is following up with the state, too. "We've not seen a significant number of complaints," he said, though officials are sending reminders to businesses to ensure they are fully aware of the guidelines so that no rollback occurs. "This is something nobody wants to see happen." 🐾

Quarantine Lifting

Easing Trauma Your Dog Might Encounter

BY DAN RATTINER

There was a wonderful article in The New York Times the other day about dogs and how we can help them cope with the end of the deep quarantine.

Advice was given by Patricia McConnell, a certified animal behavior expert and the author of the new book At the Other End of the Leash.

Consider, she says, that your dog has had you and the rest of the family in the house for weeks, maybe months, which, from the dog's perspective, has been just great. They are highly social animals, after all. Hooray for the quarantine.

Now, suddenly, all this is changing. Ms. McConnell suggests that you ease your dog into this very slowly and carefully. At first, set treats on the floor in front of the dog and, as he goes for them, everybody get up and go out the front door and into the street. But do this for just five seconds, then everybody comes back.

See? It was no big deal.

Doing this the first time might still really upset the dog, since he was not invited along but instead left home alone, however brief that might have been. So then do it again, and then again. Each time, have everybody stay out a little longer, so like the second time it's for 15 seconds, and the third time it's 30 seconds. After a while, it's everybody out of the house for a whole hour. See? We came back.

Each time you do it, gather up the things you usually gather up when you go out—the car keys, the wallets and so forth—so he slowly gets used to all this. Eventually he will understand that the picking up of the car keys and the wallet means yes, you're going out, but you will be back.

Another expert quoted in this article, Sarah Wilson—who has just authored My Smart Puppy, Fun, Effective and Easy Training—suggests that before leaving your home for work (Yay! Work!) you offer your dog a “safe space” in the house. It could be a big dog crate, and you can try to make the dog happy about that by offering treats and encouragement. But though most dogs like this, there are some dogs that just never take to a crate. In that case, the safe space could be a part of a room, but, she suggests, it should not be near a window where the dog can look out at strangers and be barking as they walk by. She calls it “screaming,” to help owners understand the seriousness of the barking from the dog's perspective. It can, over time, Ms. Wilson says, really get “their brains... flooded with all of this confusing and upsetting brain chemistry, which doesn't go away on its own instantly.”

Well. Better yet, I say, is just take your dog with you when you go, because dogs love to go for a ride in a car, especially with their heads out the window and their tongues hanging out and getting smacked around by the wind. I suggest though that if it's too hot in a car for that, just don't go out. Instead, call work and tell them you'll be in another day. 🐾

STUDENTS' SOLITARY PORTRAITS SAY IT ALL

If a picture says a thousand words, then every one of Barbara Lassen's graduation portraits is a novel of happiness and solitude captured in one poignant pose.

Lassen, who shoots under the name Barbara Lynne Photography, is more than a little attached to this realm; the Manoville resident wears another hat—that of a school administrator.

"I'm in the school system," she said. "As both an administrator and a special ed teacher. I understand the importance of it all not just for the students, but for their parents."

Lassen is a parent herself, of a 13-year-old and a 16-year-old, and is active in the PTA and other groups, "and I heard the conversations the parents were having. It was almost like grieving, that they weren't going to celebrate the graduations and the different things that were coming up that involved the students." Also, she acknowledged, she felt a need to "be creative" while stuck in quarantine. "I also wanted to create some happiness," she said. "And make it affordable, because some people have lost their jobs — it's hard for a lot of people right now."

Her photographs combine meaningful words with a solitary portrait of the student (or in some cases, siblings) in silhouette. "It really just took off," she said.

"We had to meet the needs of the 'stay in place' order," she said. So, the student portraits are often taken by a parent to be incorporated by Lassen using mixed media. Although she has captured students on the East End, "These are students from all over America, I'm getting orders now from all over—from California, from Idaho, Maryland — it's just amazing," she said.

"There are other photographers doing the same kind of thing, everyone is trying to be creative and bring happiness. And people are so supportive. In our area, a lot of people are 'adopting' seniors, and giving them the portraits as a graduation gift."

Lassen, who was the photographer for the recently released The Hamptons Kitchen, has also combined her love of nature with her portraits. "I have lots of pictures of East End sunsets and scenes, so I'll be incorporating those into my work going forward." Going forward for Lassen includes engagements, weddings, baby pictures, and all of the images that celebrate life's most important moments.

"I'm using specific photos too, like for Montauk, or Sag Harbor. I want to try to cater to what's in people's hearts, and the area that they love most," she said. "I have a family who recently lost someone. So, I was able to give them a composite of a group of photos and a poem that meant something to her and her father."

The poignancy of all of this is not lost on Lassen. "I love creating, but speaking with the parents and communicating with them, it's almost a therapeutic outlet for them. They are saying, 'I need to celebrate all the hard work my kid has put in since kindergarten to 12th grade.'"

It's important to be upbeat, Lassen believes. "Positivity is important right now, more than ever," she said. "It's nice to be able to pay something forward." 🐾

These are students from all over America. I'm getting orders from all over—it's just amazing.

Lassen's photography can be viewed at www.barbaralynnephotography.pixieset.com.

MEET THE CLASS OF 2020 STUDENTS WHO SECURED VALEDICTORIAN AND SALUTATORIAN HONORS

BY DESIRÉE KEEGAN

High school academics can be very competitive for driven students. These seniors challenge themselves, contribute to clubs, and donate time to their communities. They earn scholarships to top universities. Some even earn the honor of being named valedictorian or salutatorian. How these students stack up against their peers helps colleges contextualize applicants. Here's a look at the East End seniors who have catapulted themselves to the top of the Class of 2020:

EAST HAMPTON SCHOOL DISTRICT

VALEDICTORIAN AND SALUTATORIAN
SAMANTHA PRINCE & WELLS WOOLCOTT

Samantha Prince and Wells Woolcott are valedictorian and salutatorian of East Hampton Union Free School District's Class of 2020.

Prince, who will attend Yale University, was involved in many different extracurricular activities, including ballet, playing the clarinet, science research, Student Association Club, was a Class of 2020 officer, and more, yet at the same time was able to produce outstanding academic results.

"She has perfected her time management skills over the years and is truly one of the most successfully-involved students I have ever worked with," her counselor Lynne Yardley Brown said.

Prince is an Advanced Placement Capstone Diploma recipient, received the high honors award from the Long Island Science Congress, and was selected to participate in the Long Island Science and Engineering Fair for her research work on antibiotic resistance.

She holds positions as co-class president, Student Association president, National Honor Society president, and Symphonic Band secretary.

As a ballet dancer, she has performed in lead roles with professional partners in several local performances, and was selected to take part in summer intensive ballet programs at the University of Alabama and SUNY Purchase College.

Prince was an All-County clarinet player and this year was selected to the All-County band by the New York State Council of Administrators of Music Education.

This past summer, Prince took part in a medical internship in Argentina. The program, Projects Abroad, provided her the opportunity to observe doctors and nurses on their rounds. She also attended medical lectures and workshops and participated in community outreaches in rural communities. Prince said it was a rewarding experience. She "scrubbed in" and observed surgeries and also provided presentations in Spanish on health and nutrition to community members.

This year Prince also interned as a research assistant for Peter Emerson, a former White House aide who is a Harvard Medical School teaching affiliate. Prince is working with Emerson on a local initiative focused on vaping awareness, specifically targeting the electronic cigarette Juul. She is part of a group of students that visited surrounding school districts and created call-to-action forums highlighting the dangers of vaping.

Woolcott is also co-class president, a National Merit Scholar, and Academic Team president who will be attending the University of Virginia.

"He is truly an amazing young man," his counselor Samone Ritz said.

Woolcott put in over 600 community service hours, and was the first student in school history to be selected for a National Association for Music Education All-National ensemble.

SAG HARBOR SCHOOL DISTRICT

Ruby Yassen and Chase Allardice are valedictorian and salutatorian of Sag Harbor Union Free School District's Class of 2020.

Both pursued International Baccalaureate diplomas — given after Both pursued International Baccalaureate diplomas — given after completing the International Baccalaureate Diploma Programme's two-year educational curriculum for 16-to-19-year-olds that provides an internationally-accepted qualification for entry into higher education and is recognized by many universities worldwide. The academic program has been both challenging and rewarding, the students said, especially the independent assessments and extended essays for each class.

During the stay-at-home period, Yassen completed her IB Visual Arts Assessment, which was a virtual exhibition. She said it was a lot of work, but it kept her creative and busy. She will major in English at University of California, Los Angeles, and hopes to eventually minor in film.

"I chose this school because I wanted a change from high school, so its size was very appealing to me," she said. "Also, I love California. UCLA has the perfect balance of school spirit and strong academics I was looking for."

Allardice said two favorites assignments were his musical investigative project, which focused on jazz icon Miles Davis's influence on modern music, and his history project about President Dwight D. Eisenhower's administration initiative to engage jazz musicians to help cool Cold War tensions. He too has been keeping up with his studies and recording and writing new music.

Allardice will study music with an unsolicited scholarship at the prestigious Berklee College of Music in Boston.

"I feel it will provide me with the best musical education and opportunity that I can find," he said.

Both students attended school in Sag Harbor since kindergarten, and while they are looking forward to college, they said moving on will be bittersweet.

HAMPTON BAYS SCHOOL DISTRICT

Skye McMorris and Lily Candelaria are valedictorian and salutatorian of Hampton Bays Union Free School District's Class of 2020.

VAL. SKYE MCMORRIS

SAL. LILY CANDELARIA

McMorris boasts numerous accomplishments throughout her high school career. Along with being named an AP Scholar and National Merit Commended Student, she earned an All-County academic award for volleyball, was named a regional winner in the VFW Voice of Democracy writing contest for the past two years, and earned the Daughters of the American Revolution Good Citizen Award, which recognizes and rewards individuals who possess the qualities of dependability, service, leadership, and patriotism in their homes, schools, and communities. McMorris was a member of her school's Key Club, jazz band, Future Business Leaders of America Club, Interact Club, Science Olympiad team, and varsity volleyball team. She also participated in her school's theater program.

As a student in the school's Science Research Program for the past four years, McMorris decided to continue on that track by majoring in biochemistry in college, with the goal of joining a research lab and studying genetic disorders.

To underclassmen, she offered the following advice for success: "Work as hard as possible and be passionate about the work that you are doing.”

PIERSON VALEDICTORIAN AND
SALUTATORIAN RUBY YASSEN AND

Candelaria earned the designations of National Hispanic Scholar and AP Scholar with Honor. She was also well-rounded in her extracurricular pursuits, as she was a member of her school's Key Club, Interact Club, Science Olympiad team, and National and Science honor societies. As an athlete, she participated on her school's varsity volleyball, basketball, and softball teams and earned multiple postseason awards during the course of her high school career.

In the fall, Candelaria will attend New York University to study biology, with plans to follow a pre-med track. She will also play softball while in college.

She offered the following advice to underclassmen: “Get involved in activities outside of school, because it's a healthy outlet, and always work hard, no matter how difficult it gets.”

RIVERHEAD SCHOOL DISTRICT

SALUTATORIAN AND VALEDICTORIAN
ZACHARY WHITE AND CHRISTINA YAKABOSKI

Christina Yakaboski and Zachary White are valedictorian and salutatorian of Riverhead Central School District's Class of 2020.

Yakaboski achieved a number of academic accomplishments throughout her school career. She is an AP Scholar with Distinction and earned the Johns Hopkins Center for Talented Youth Award for high honors in mathematical, verbal, and spatial ability. She is a member of the National Honor Society and the National Foreign Language Honor Society for her Latin studies. She also belonged to the Math Club and Mentathletes, and participated in Athletes Helping Athletes. When not studying, she could be found on the track, as she was captain of the cross-country, and spring and winter track teams. She also earned multiple postseason awards, including All-County and All-Academic honors for winter track, and holds school records for the sprint medley relay, distance medley relay, and 4x400-meter relay.

Yakaboski plans to study political science or law in the fall. She cites sports involvement as a path to success and advises underclassmen to “learn new things and do things outside of academics.”

White is an AP Scholar with Distinction and earned Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute's eponymous medal for outstanding academic achievement in mathematics and science. He was a member of his school's National Honor Society, National Foreign Language Honor Society (Latin studies), Key Club, Math Club, and Robotics Club. He is also a musician and played alto saxophone in his school's pep band and wind ensemble. In addition, he achieved his Eagle Scout award from the Boy Scouts of America.

BH VAL. MADELINE GRABB

White plans to study engineering or a related STEM-based field in the fall. His advice for success is in keeping with his dedicated attitude.

“If you work hard and don't give up, you can accomplish great things,” White said. “Perseverance is as important as studying and working hard because some classes can be especially challenging.”

BRIDGEHAMPTON SCHOOL DISTRICT

Madeline Grabb and Jaden Campbell are valedictorian and salutatorian of Bridgehampton School District's Class of 2020.

Grabb's high school résumé includes taking numerous college level, AP, and honors courses. She was a member of the school's robotics team and the National Honor Society, and took advantage of many educational opportunities while a student. This included being a member of Guild Hall of East Hampton Inc.'s Teen Arts Council, editing college essays for her peers, serving as a volunteer for The Hampton Ballet Theatre School and Maureen's Haven at Temple Adas Israel, receiving the Daughters of American Revolution Good Citizen Award, and serving as a panelist for the East End Youth Leadership Conference and knitting hundreds of preemie caps for neonatal units across the country. Grabb lives by her motto: “If something interests you, spend time finding out why.”

She expressed gratefulness to her family and teachers for their compassion and engagement, and will attend Stanford University.

Campbell also took numerous college level, AP, and honors courses in her high school career. She was a member of the National Honor Society, Student Council, marimba ensemble, Drama Club, and varsity cheer team. She participated in various volunteer opportunities including blood drives, beach cleanups, and musical performances at a local retirement home.

Campbell was consistently named to the school's High Honor Roll, is a scholar-athlete, and finds if you fully commit to both sports and academics, there is a way to achieve a successful balance.

Campbell said to future graduates: “Create the future you want for yourself.”

She will attend the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

WESTHAMPTON BEACH SCHOOL DISTRICT

Kay Horak and Kathleen Kelly are valedictorian and salutatorian of Westhampton Beach Union Free School District's Class of 2020.

Horak achieved a number of academic accomplishments during her tenure at Westhampton Beach High School. She is a National Merit Scholarship semifinalist, a National AP Scholar, and a recipient of the Frederick Douglass and Susan B. Anthony Social Justice Award, presented to those who demonstrate commitment to understanding and addressing difficult social issues, leadership and dedication to community action, and strong grades and rigorous courses taken in the humanities and social sciences. She was also president of her school's Key Club and a member of the National Honor Society, drama department, quiz bowl team, and jazz and pep bands, for which she played trombone. Outside of school, she volunteered at the Quogue Wildlife Refuge.

Horak plans to study environmental science and policy in the fall. Her key to success is to “know your limits and take on a curriculum that you know you will enjoy and do well in.”

Kelly is a National AP Scholar, a National Merit Commended Scholar, a member of the National Honor Society, and was co-president of her school's Interact/Rotary Club and a student trustee for the Hurricane Educational Foundation. She also ran varsity track at school and is a member of the Westhampton Beach Junior Ambulance.

Kelly intends to study finance or computer science in the fall. She attributes her success to seeking out friends she was able to work well with, and never being afraid to ask questions.

SALUTATORIAN KATHLEEN
KELLY AND VALEDICTORIAN
KAY HORAK

MATTITUCK SCHOOL DISTRICT

Jessica Scheer is valedictorian, and Kelsey Bundrick and Shelby Dufton co-salutatorians of Mattituck-Cutchogue Union Free School District Class of 2020.

All three are members of the varsity tennis team.

Scheer was a member of the National Honor Society, high school theater and North Fork Community Theater, and varsity track team who will study biological sciences at Cornell University.

Bundrick is a church volunteer, and was a varsity tennis player and member of the school newspaper. Bundrick will study chemistry at Liberty University.

Dufton was a member of Select Chorus, Mathletes, and high school musical and play department who will study music at Dartmouth College.

SOUTHOLD SCHOOL DISTRICT

Walter Brigham IV and Rhian Tramontana are valedictorian and salutatorian of Southold Union Free School District Class of 2020.

Brigham was a member of the National Honor Society, jazz band, and varsity tennis, basketball, and soccer teams who will study physics and mathematics at Binghamton University.

Tramontana was the National Honor Society president and a member of the chamber orchestra, was a school newspaper journalist, member of the varsity volleyball team, and middle school volleyball manager who will study international relations at Batten Honors College at Virginia Wesleyan University.

Southampton and Ross school districts do not recognize a valedictorian and salutatorian.

HONORING the ARTIST

This Week's Cover Artist: Daniel Pollera

SCENES OF WATER ARE UBIQUITOUS WITH DANIEL POLLERA'S ART

Dan's Best of the Best Hall of Famer and frequent cover contributor Daniel Pollera talks about solitude, the water's shifting moods and more.

What was the inspiration for this piece?

I had been painting some ominous dark pieces over the winter and needed something with a summer feel. I did a similar painting last year and decided to revisit the piece and change it up a bit. I created a beautiful day with the notorious afternoon sea breeze.

How has the quarantine altered your perspective on art?

To be honest, the quarantine didn't alter my perspective on my art. What it did do was give me the extended solitude to create at a pace that was enjoyable. Taking my time on a painting is a pleasure for me and usually results in a better piece.

As the summer season approaches, does your artistic process change at all, and if so, how?

As the summer starts, the pace of everything and everyone increases. My process doesn't change, it's the same. What I do get is extra inspiration being on the water almost everyday.

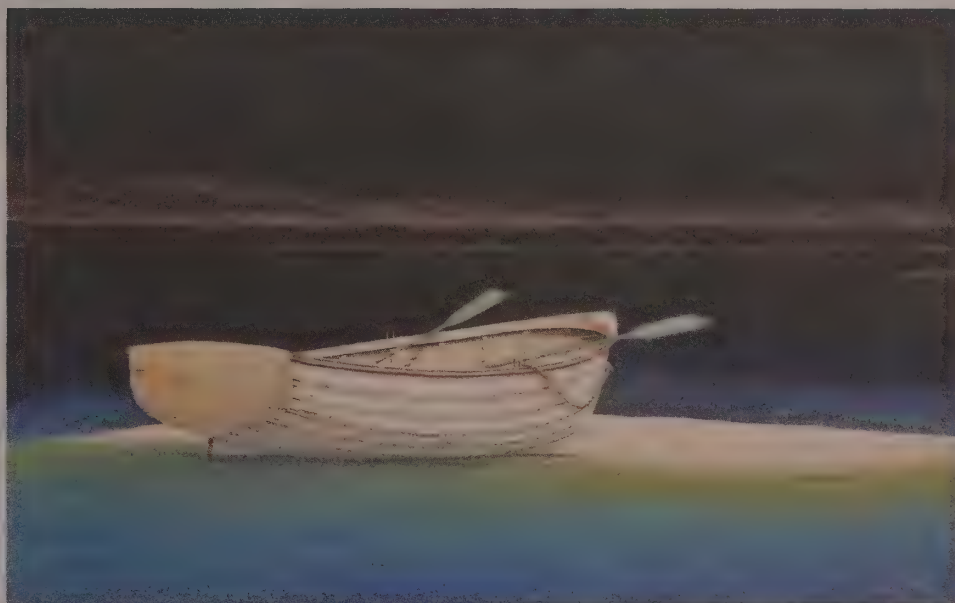

What's a particular artistic subject you haven't tackled yet but want to in the future?

I wouldn't say there's a particular subject that I haven't tackled, that I want to. But I would like to do some plein air painting if I ever get the chance.

What is it about the water that inspires and moves you?

I have loved the water all my life. It has many personalities, which I have seen over the years. The ocean, bays and the Sound have rage and fury at times. It can also be calm and tranquil. When I'm out by myself I feel a personal connection to it, but also respect its power. For those reasons I'm compelled to include it in all my paintings. 🐬

Anita Boyer Teaches Tap Roots and Fundamentals at Bay Street Theater

ANITA BOYER AND OUR FABULOUS VARIETY SHOW IN "TAP: AN EVENING OF RHYTHM"

Tap dancing icon Ayodele Casel said, "It's a time step but it's not a time step. It's a flap but it's not a flap."

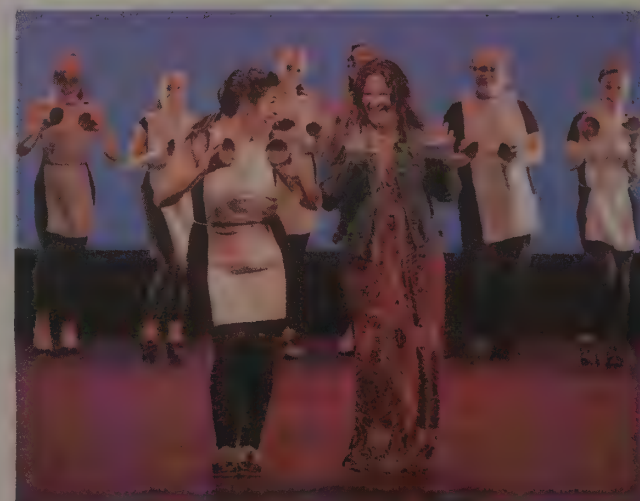

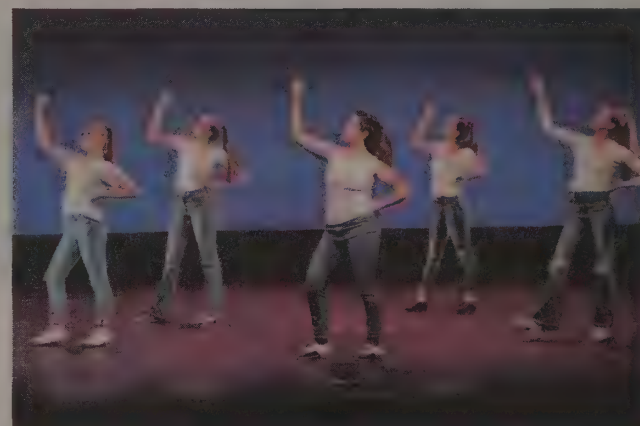

For Hamptons-based performer, director and instructor Anita Boyer, Casel's words are hugely important for her virtual Tap Camp at Bay Street Theater. It may come as a surprise to some that tap dancing doesn't originate from the likes of Fred Astaire and Singin' in the Rain, but from slaves who had no other mode of expression. Boyer, who co-founded Our Fabulous Variety Show and performs around the East End, wants the online workshop to not only teach students the fundamentals of tap dance but also the often-overlooked history of the fun yet complex art form.

"With everything that's been going on in the world, and as a tap dancer, I've always found it really important to make sure that my students and audience understand the history of tap and its roots in slavery and how black people created tap dance," Boyer says. "[Tap] was created in the fields when slaves' drums were taken away from them and they had no other way to express themselves. So they started using their bodies. From there, there's so much to talk about! It'll be part of the class to pay tribute to and recognize the roots of tap." Boyer believes everyone, from a casual dance student to a professional, should learn tap's history.

Boyer, who has directed several iterations of Tap: An Evening of Rhythm with Our Fabulous Variety Show, notes that despite studying tap for 20 years, she didn't learn about its roots for a long time. "I grew up in Ohio and didn't really learn any of the history of tap there," she explains, instead getting an education in tap history from her mentor, Aaron Coulson, a few years ago when she was putting together her first Tap show. "In Ohio, we talked about Gene Kelly and Fred Astaire and White Christmas," she says. "And when I was first creating content for the original Tap production six years ago I showed it to Aaron and he was like, 'You're missing some people there!' The last thing I wanted to be was ignorant about it. It's a lot of work but it's work worth doing."

The Tap Camp is going to be about 90% dancing and 10% history and information. "I like to find clips of tap professionals in the field," Boyer explains. "I don't want to feel like I am retelling someone else's story. They tell it the best, so it's great to hear it in their words and share their story in that way." Boyer has also enlisted her fiancé, actor Joe Pallister, as her trusty assistant. "We have a very funny repartee," she says. "He's a beginner, so I can have him do a beginner step and then give a more advanced variation so it can be accessible for multiple levels." The class is designed for both beginners and more experienced dancers, and Boyer hopes the online format will make it less intimidating for everyone. "I want this to be a really great welcome, reentry or help to boost [more advanced dancers] to the next level. It's for anyone!"

Hamptons Summer Pop-ups Add Takeout & Delivery Options

The East End is seasonal. We're here all year, but there is always an influx of stores and pop-ups that come for beach season and leave in the fall. While that tradition has certainly been impacted by everything that's happened the last few months, many businesses have come up with creative ways to open up shop safely and cost-effectively. Check out some of the new eateries and delivery services that have opened for the summer or plan to open this month.

AMORINO

Weekly Hamptons delivery on Thursday
Based in NYC
212-253-5599, amorino.com

Amorino now offers Hamptons delivery of its world-class desserts. Their decadent gelato and sorbets are completely natural and gluten-free, and the sorbets are certified vegan.

BIG BRUNCH BOX

Weekly Hamptons delivery on Fridays
Based in Southampton
bigbrunchbox.com

This new Hamptons delivery service offers small, medium, large and build-your-own boxes filled with bagels, cream cheese and salmon for a delicious weekend brunch. Orders must be placed by 5 p.m. on Wednesday for Friday delivery.

CARBONE HAMPTONS POP-UP

Offering takeout Wednesday-Sunday, 3:30-8 p.m.
230 Elm Street, Southampton
carbonehamptons.com

The pop-up will feature all of the signature dishes that can be found on the renowned Carbone NYC menu, including Caesar alla ZZ, Spicy Rigatoni Vodka, Mario's Meatballs and Veal Parm and whole cakes. Online orders should be placed one hour before contact-free pickup time, and food is prepared ready to eat.

DANTE

Weekly Hamptons delivery Friday-Sunday
Based in NYC
dante-nyc.com

The historic Greenwich Village bar is bringing its signature Negronis, martinis, spritzers and cocktail starter kits to the Hamptons, delivering their popular drinks and packs in vintage Cooper Classic cars.

Organic Krush Now an Ocean Friendly Restaurant

After five years in business, Organic Krush, founded in 2015 by co-founders Michelle Walrath and Fran Panniccia, is now officially an Ocean Friendly Restaurant, in association with the Surfrider Foundation.

"We have been passionately dedicated to saving the Earth's resources and preserving people's health," Walrath, who has been an active supporter of Surfrider throughout the years, says. The company's existing ethos is rooted in serving all food—a predominantly plant-based menu—and juices in toxin free, biodegradable, or reusable glass containers. "Now with Surfrider's platform, we can share those practices with even more persons, and inspire restaurants to prioritize these Earth-saving measures as well," she adds.

According to surfrider.org, there are now 5.25 trillion pieces of plastic in the ocean and 8.75 million metric tons added each year. The impact of these numbers affects not only marine ecosystems but all wildlife, including humans who digest seafood that ingest said toxins. The Ocean Friendly Restaurant program aims to change that by increasing awareness and changing individual behavior, one restaurant a time.

All participating restaurants must meet at least five criteria—no use of Styrofoam, proper recycling, only reusable foodware for onsite dining, no plastic bag options for take-out with utensils only provided upon request, and paper straws only provided upon request. In addition, they must implement at least two additional practices—no plastic bottle beverages, discount for customers using reusable containers, regularly offer vegetarian/vegan food, water conservation and pollution mitigation efforts, and energy efficiency efforts.

Organic Krush has five Long Island locations, from Amagansett to Rockville Centre, with an additional storefront in Virginia. The Ocean Friendly Restaurant certificate solidifies a company-wide effort and promise to help the environment. Beyond company morale, which attracts likeminded customers dedicated to preserving the natural environment, Panniccia points out the benefit being eco-friendly has on business, from a cost perspective. "Since we have the same eco-friendly practices at all locations, it makes spreading the word even easier. We can get better pricing from vendors because we purchase in bulk for all of our restaurants," she says. The restaurant is now one of three East End locations to be part of the program, including The Maidstone Hotel in East Hampton and First and South in Greenport. The women hope that other restaurants will follow suit.

With Phase 2 now in full swing, Organic Krush has patios open for patrons. Its Plainview location even has a tent, so staff can serve guests rain or shine.

Find Your Outdoor Perch: Crow's Nest Lakeside Dining

Most summers on the East End start the same way for me. The week before Memorial Day weekend, I drive 20 minutes out from my house in East Hampton to Montauk, to the first place that ever made space for me out east. There, on Lake Montauk, through a green blanket of lawn that boasts a spectacular sunset and a curated vibe—think batik, gentle lighting, sea breeze-worn wood, and the comfortable chic of summer—I tumble into dinner at the Crow's Nest.

Not this year, of course, because when the season started this year, restaurants were still asleep. And even now, with our groggy reopening finally here, the Crow's Nest is, like everyone else, just testing the waters of post-pandemic dining, with an adaptive look at restaurant life. The restaurant opened last weekend as a to-go style only operation. Guests can order directly on the website—cocktails, wine, beer, appetizers and main courses. Food arrives at the host stand pre-packaged and guests can seat themselves at the gorgeous outdoor tables that stud the property. Some are shaded by pergola, while others circle a fire pit. No doubt the most coveted spots, though, will be at the small beach down by Lake Montauk, where the fiery sunset explodes onto the water each night.

Many of the menu favorites from Crow's Nest 1.0 remain, like the whipped ricotta with honey and pink peppercorn, the mezze platter, the grilled chicken kebabs, and the kale salad. Others are adaptations.

FIRE PIT AT CROW'S NEST IN MONTAUK

The lamb gyro is designed, for instance, to be a more easily consumed option for those sitting on a lawn or by a beach, and the new artisanal cheese boards and charcuterie platters, which offer a selection of fruits, nuts, cheeses, and meats, are also meant to complement the outdoor seating. The indoor area is currently closed for guests, but there are several satellite bars set up for those who wish to order a second (or third) drink during their stay. As seating fills, the restaurant will begin to turn guests away, as it has with indoor seating in the past.

An added perk for those looking to drink well while minimizing contact—the Crow's Nest is now offering large-format preparations of its specialty and classic cocktails. Guests can order two-person, four-person, eight-person, and, in some cases, five- and 10-person servings of batched cocktails, meaning fewer trips to the satellite bar or host stand (for those ordering from their phones, which is highly recommended). If you aren't a cocktail lover, fear not—a slim, smart wine list is also available. The idea is to avoid any possible points of congregation, while still providing guests with the lovely experience that the Crow's Nest has always provided.

And, like everything else in this nebulous world of restaurant reconfiguration, the Crow's Nest current plan is one that's applicable for this particular moment in time. As New York learns more about the phased reopening, the restaurant will adapt its strategy, and, possibly, its hours of operation (the current plan is to remain open Friday to Sunday, although that is subject to change).

Staff members will be wearing protective masks, and guests should, too, if they are within a six-foot distance of anyone else. The good news is that summer is most definitely not canceled. The Crow's Nest, in its current state, has, for a decade, signified summer in Montauk—lazy days, airy nights, a carefree spirit. With its return, a certain part of the East End has returned, too, and we can begin to pick up the pieces of summer, with a side of whipped ricotta. 🍷

Fetch-A-Sketch: Painting Priceless Pet Portraits for SASF

Our beloved pets have long played important roles in our families—serving as emotional support, motivating us to exercise, making us laugh with their antics and helping us keep a routine—and during shelter-in-place orders and self-quarantines, they've proven vital to the mental and physical wellbeing of many East Enders. This month, the Southampton Animal Shelter Foundation (SASF) unveiled Fetch-A-Sketch, a unique fundraiser to honor our faithful companions while supporting the organization and local artists who've been impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic.

Fetch-A-Sketch is a month-long initiative that gives pet parents a chance to transform their furry (or feathery or scaly) friends into works of art created by one of three masterful artists—Tiffany Bowman, Lauren DeFoto and Camille McMennamin. Bowman has a full-time career as a scientific illustrator and designer, but her greatest joy comes from illustrating her customers' pets, as well as her one dog and two cats. DeFoto doubles as both a talented artist and a SASF adoption coordinator, so offering her paintings and drawings (pencil or ink) to Fetch-A-Sketch is the dream combination of her two passions. McMennamin is represented by the Amsterdam Whitney Gallery in Chelsea, and her figurative paintings and portraits are coveted by private collectors across America and Europe.

"This is our first year, and based on its success, we would consider doing it annually, perhaps next year featuring additional artists," SASF Director of Adoptions Kate McEntee says, adding that its premiere has been a great "way to bring the community together while being socially distant."

Anyone seeking to commission a piece should first select one of the three artists, the art medium they'd like and their payment information by Friday, July 10. The donation costs are per-pet, with a portion of proceeds benefiting the animals at the SASF and the rest going to the artist. High-resolution photos of the selected pets should then be sent to the artist, noting how separate photos of different pets should be combined. The finished, bespoke portrait will be shipped within six to eight weeks.

This fundraiser comes at an exciting time of transition for the SASF, as they slowly begin to reopen to the public in a limited capacity. The Catos, home to the felines awaiting adoption, has recently begun accepting appointments to meet the pets in-person, and Skype/Facetime meet-and-greets with the cats will still be offered, as well. "We continue the rule of social distancing to continue to keep everyone safe and healthy," McEntee notes. The successful Roadside Adoptions & Fosters program will continue to match dogs with forever and summer homes.

Beware.

Did you know?

Most people are bitten by ticks picked up in their own yard. Ticks can spread serious diseases to people and pets. A single tick bite could put you at risk for six different diseases such as Lyme Disease, Babesiosis and Ehrlichiosis, among others. Warm winters have led to an explosion in ticks which are now a year-round threat. According to scientists at Stony Brook University, "Tick-borne infections have reached epidemic proportions on LI." You can prevent illness by checking your body carefully, promptly removing any ticks found and showering soon after spending time outdoors. Ticks cannot fly or jump. They must make direct contact with a host (that's you) and feed slowly until engorged with blood.

Now more than ever, protect your family.

Since 1997, East End Tick & Mosquito Control has provided the most effective tick-prevention program possible, using the most environmentally-responsible methods available. Tick and mosquito control is our only business, not a sideline like it is for so many others claiming to be "experts." Now more than ever, knowledge and experience matters. We're serious about your safety. Let us help you keep your family safe. Call us today for a free estimate. *

Summer Tick Safety Tips for East End Pets and You

This summer might seem a little different, but one thing remains the same—ticks are out and are very active! This past winter was extremely mild, and you might be seeing more ticks than usual this season. We don't want to risk any co-infections with COVID-19 and Lyme disease, but another thing to remember is Lyme disease symptoms could be mistaken for those associated with COVID-19. Lyme disease shares a few of the same symptoms as the virus, including fever, achiness and chills. If you mistake Lyme disease for COVID-19, you could delay necessary medical treatment, which could lead to more severe symptoms.

While you are all out exercising and hiking during the next several months, remember that unlike us, ticks are not adhering to the "social distancing rules"—and we have to remember to keep our pets safe, too. Ticks are very tiny, therefore they can be easy to miss and are sometimes latched on for days before we come across them. Both cats and dogs can be infected with Lyme disease, and cats are especially vulnerable to tularemia, haemo-bartonellosis and babesiosis. Dogs, similar to people, can contract rocky mountain spotted fever, hepatozoonosis, which is contracted by eating an infected tick, and more.

When performing a tick check, always inspect your pet's head, neck, feet, in-between toes, armpits and ears very closely. When walking your pets, stay away from forests, wooded areas, leaf litter and tall grasses. Always groom your pets carefully and remember to check yourself after you check your pets, as ticks may climb onto you very easily when looking for a meal. Remember to spray monthly between the months of April and November to help limit the amount of ticks on your property.

Another way to reduce risk for your pets is to consider installing an invisible fence, which limits the area a dog can roam, but defines where we can spray thoroughly. Spraying alone will not keep ticks off your pets, ask your vet a tick control product such as Frontline or Advantix.

If you do find a tick on your pet, grab a pair of tweezers and remove the tick carefully by pulling on its head with tweezers. Lastly, after four to six weeks, take your pet for a screening, and remember to always keep an eye out for symptoms.

EPA CERTIFIED DISINFECTANT NOW AVAILABLE!!

EFFERSAN is a highly effective, multi-purpose disinfecting and sanitizing tablet. When dissolved in water it creates a mild, non-irritating solution. EFFERSAN is a tested, proven and EPA-registered product with a 5 minute contact time for SARS-CoV-2 (Covid-19) and canine parvovirus. MILDEW BUSTERS is now the exclusive distributor on Long Island for EFFERSAN disinfectant tablets. EFFERSAN is specifically approved by the EPA for killing the Covid-19 virus. It is fully biodegradable, and can be applied to your home's exterior, pool areas, decks, patios, vehicles and outdoor furniture by MILDEW BUSTERS. Or to your home's interior by us or you with little instruction!

East End Real Estate Offices Open for Business

As part of Phase 2 of New York Forward, the initiative to reopen New York State after the COVID-19 quarantine, real estate offices are permitted to open for business.

This is a hugely important step for the East End real estate industry, which has been forced to operate remotely and virtually since March. The local real estate offices have found success in adapting business models to suit government restrictions, but it's just not the same. "Long-term, I don't see humanoids being able to keep such distance and have such a lack of tactile stimuli," Town & Country Real Estate CEO Judi Desiderio told Behind the Hedges in May. "And real estate is probably one of the most personal things. You're not buying a shirt, or a bottle of vodka or even a plant. You're buying a house."

Todd Bourgard, Senior Executive Regional Manager of Sales for the Hamptons at Douglas Elliman Real Estate, is optimistic that offices reopening will help the industry flourish and points out that the market did prove to be malleable to change during the pandemic. "Though our offices were physically closed, our agents were working remotely to ensure the health and safety of our staff and clients," Bourgard says, noting that they're taking steps to ensure the safety of both real estate professionals and clients. "Now that Long Island has entered Phase 2 of reopening, we are operating under strict guidelines," he says. "Douglas Elliman is supplying masks, hand sanitizer and disinfectants to all agents and has provided guidebooks of safe social distancing measures, keeping surfaces clean, all to ensure health and success during these trying times."

Brown Harris Stevens Executive Managing Director Robert Nelson urges prospective buyers to exercise prudence. "We are cautiously proceeding on opening following state mandated procedures," Nelson says, which include "strict mask and sanitation policies with limited agents working in shifts and screening questions before employees, agents and the public enter an office. We encourage everyone to work remotely with phone and conference video."

For Bridget Terry, Real Estate Salesperson at Daniel Gale Sotheby's International Real Estate, working remotely has proven highly successful. "I think the pandemic has changed the way we do business permanently," Terry says. "The reality is, when you are buying, you only need to actually get inside the one or two homes that make the top of your list. Every rental I did this year was done with a FaceTime tour or video. That is how I am still doing them." Terry also notes, "I was an office person before this started. I know every agent is not like that, but I was in the office every day. Now that I have been working remotely, I'm not sure how often I will go to the office."

Other real estate offices emphasize of safety first, as well. "The health and safety of our agents, employees, and customers are of paramount importance," Compass said in a statement provided to Dan's Papers and Behind the Hedges. "In addition, the company is also recommending that agents pre-qualify buyers, share video tours ahead of in-person showings whenever possible, create walkthrough strategies, and properly disinfect homes after every scheduled showing."

Social distancing and sanitary practices remain vital to New York Forward, and with real estate offices taking steps to keep everyone safe, the reopening of the East End will continue to go smoothly. 🏠

THE HAMPTONS PREMIER CHARTER OPERATOR

When looking to charter an aircraft, your safety and peace of mind must be at the forefront.

Sunrise Jets is an industry leader in response to COVID-19. Unlike most of our competition, our aircraft are not used in “taxi cab” like fashion, going from destination to destination day in and day out. Instead we pride ourselves on only committing to YOU. Our fleet starts and returns to home-base in Westhampton Beach, NY. When you board our planes, you can be assured in knowing that before you step in, that every surface and every fabric has been cleaned, disinfected, and sanitized for YOU and YOUR SAFETY.

Our team has been trained in utilizing “ClearCabin- powered by PreventX” - an antimicrobial barrier that when applied to a surface forms an invisible bio-barrier coating that protects against the growth of bacteria and micro-organisms. Providing lasting protection from various bacteria, germs, and viruses like COVID- 19. Its durability comes from the molecular bond it forms with surfaces once cured.

When choosing to charter an aircraft, make sure that YOU come first. No one will have your safety and well-being set as a top priority like the family you have at Sunrise Jets. With over 40 Years in the Private Aviation Industry on Long Island, we are here to show you how comforting, relaxing, luxurious, and safe our New Normal can be.
